■ 'CAPRERA' COFFEE TABLES
by Massimo Castagna

Since launching ten years ago, Italian garden furniture brand Exteta has produced everything from red cedar sunbeds and brass lights to large teahouse pavilions and outdoor kitchens at its workshop near Milan. To celebrate its tenth anniversary, the company joined forces with architect Massimo Castagna to produce a collection that highlights the brand's connection to nature and sense of space. Named after a small island off the Sardinian coast, these coffee tables feature wood and marble assembled in a jigsaw-like fashion, and form part of a collection that sees Exteta and Castagna play with a diverse range of materials. A lounge and chair with matching dowel legs are also available. 'Caprera' rectangular table, €1,640; round, €1,330, by Massimo Castagna, for Exteta, exteta.it

■ 'GEA' PARASOL
by Chi Wing Lo

Giorgetti launched its inaugural outdoors offering with a sophisticated collection by Chinese designer Chi Wing Lo. Named after the Greek word for 'earth', the 'Gea' collection celebrates the openness of outdoor living. Mounted on a 360-degree swivel frame with a stainless steel or marble-insert base, the sail-like parasol is a welcome breath of fresh air in the world of sun screens. 'Gea' parasol, £758, by Chi Wing Lo, for Giorgetti, giorgetti.eu

■ 'NEF' CHAIR
by Patrick Norguet

Patrick Norguet's debut design for Italian brand emu is a chair that consists of a light aluminium frame and a braided rope net backrest, with comfort enhanced by a selection of padded cushions. Designed to bring visual lightness to outdoor seating areas, it is also available as a dining chair. 'Nef' chair, price on request, by Patrick Norguet, for Emu, emu.it

■ 'LOOK' LAMPS
by Matteo Thun

Italian architect Matteo Thun's 'Look' lamps for Simes are made of glass, oiled teak and die-cast aluminium in a burnished bronze or white finish. Available in two sizes, the outdoor lamps release a discreet downward glow that offers just enough illumination to create an atmospheric effect. 'Look' lamps, prices on request, by Matteo Thun, for Simes, simes.com
